James Alford Services Held This Afternoon

Business Houses Close in Tribute to Manager of King's Store

Antioch business houses were closed from 1:30 to 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in tribute to the memory of James B. Alford, manager of King's Drug store, for whom final services were held at 2 p. m. in the Strang Funeral home.

Although he had been ill for some time and the news of his passing was not unexpected, word of his death Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock at 1037 Victoria street, where he had made his home, was nevertheless received with deep regret throughout the community.

Was Highly Esteemed

During the four years he had been at King's, the first year as registered pharmacist and the last three years as manager, he had won the esteem and respect of all with whom he had business dealings.

He was interested in the welfare of the community and was friendly and genial in his business dealings. Throughout his final illness, during which he was faithfully tended by his wife, Mrs. Agnes Alford, he was patient, cheerful and always hopeful of recovery.

He was born Nov. 23, 1883, at Columbus, Miss., and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Alford.

Survivors, in addition to his wife, include three sisters and three brothers.

Friends Pay Respects

He had also endeared himself to a host of friends, many of whom called to pay their last respects at the funeral home, where the body lay in state until the Masonic services today, at which the Rev. W. C. Hensley officiated.

Burial was in Hillside cemetery. Besides his Masonic affiliations, Mr. Alford was also an active member of the Antioch Lions club.

SGT SCHAEFFER COMMENDED FOR WORK RECORD OVERSEAS

Sgt. Wilbert H. Schaefer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schaefer, Antioch, has won high commendation for helping to shatter world's records overhauling aircraft engines at an Air Service Command depot somewhere in England, according to a news release received here.

He and his fellow mechanics overhauled engines last month totaling two and one-half million horsepower, the highest figure recorded since the Air Service command began operations in England.

"A knockout blow against Germany," was the way his commanding general, Brig. Gen. Isaac W. Ott, described the contribution of Sgt. Schaefer, whose extra effort makes it possible to maintain a constant air cover over allied armies rolling through Germany.

Before entering the air forces in October, 1942, he was employed as a machine operator by Western Electric company in Chicago.

Sgt. Schaefer attended the National School of Aeronautics in Kansas City, Mo.

A brother, Pvt. James G. Schaefer, is at Keesler Army Air Field, Miss.

"I'm now stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., for a three months' course," writes T/S Charles P. Maplethorne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Maplethorne.

Pvt. Bernard D. Sherman sends a newsy letter—

"I reported to Lincoln, Neb., after I was home in August. During the month I was there I saw three fellows from Antioch, Howie Hageman, Bob Phillips and Ray Baethke.

"I am now at Mountain Home, Ida., taking crew training as a gunner."

Louis D. Bauer is a member of Company 1884 at Great Lakes.

Robert H. Ellis, formerly at Great Lakes, is now at the Amphibious Training base at Fort Pierce, Fla.

"Limitless Frontiers"

Our Migratory Game Birds

By Alan Thain

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles on conservation written by Thain, who was Lake county's representative at the Illinois Conservation school.)

Many people look back at the past with regret when thinking of the passenger pigeon or the Labrador Duck. These two migratory birds were at one time very plentiful, especially the passenger pigeon. Those who saw the flights of these birds tell us that at times migrating birds flew overhead from daybreak to sundown darkening the skies. Now there is not a passenger pigeon left. They were killed by the thousands and sold for food. Others were killed merely for sport. The story of the Labrador Duck is much the same.

Today through the efforts of the government the sale of game birds is prohibited. Birds that now exist will therefore probably be safe if we support the government and organizations which are trying to keep them in existence. Regulations have been set up that say shotguns can be no bigger than ten gauge and containing no more than three shells. A federal duck stamp must now be purchased before hunting. Hunting can be done only on the southward migration now also. The duck stamps that you buy go to a good cause. "The money realized from duck stamps," says the National Federation Bulletin, "is used by the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey to supplement other funds for purchase and maintenance of waterfowl refuges throughout the country."

Ninety per cent of the money goes for this purpose while the other 10 per cent goes for printing and distribution of the stamps and other Federal acts. There are over 59 migratory bird refuges scattered throughout the United States. They are located along the four Waterfowl flyways. Illinois is situated in the Mississippi Valley flyway which has a great migration of birds each year. It is expected that there will be a very large migration this year due in a large part to the efforts of Ducks Unlimited. So be sure to get your duck stamp and you can feel that while you are shooting the ducks you are helping them along, too.

War Campaign Workers Will Be Honored Oct. 12

Workers who aided in making Antioch's Fifth War Loan campaign a signal success will be presented government citations at a public program to be held in the high school Thursday evening, Oct. 12, at 8 o'clock.

Otto S. Klass, bond drive chairman for Antioch township, and his co-chairmen, George Wagner and John L. Horan, have arranged for a program, in co-operation with James F. Stiles, Jr., Lake County War Finance committee chairman.

Girl Scout Troop Enjoys Hike, Games

A 6-mile hike camp fire and baseball game were enjoyed by Antioch Girl Scouts Wednesday afternoon. The girls were accompanied by Mrs. C. Z. Eatherton, troop leader.

Fourteen Girl Scouts were received into the troop at an investiture meeting held Wednesday, Sept. 27, in the Antioch Methodist church parlors.

Motion pictures shown by Mr. Eatherton were a feature of the program.

Village Plans "Vacating" of Roadway Area

Councilmen Consider 60-Ft. Area from Orchard St. Past Tower Adequate

The vacating of 20 feet of the 80-foot roadway area agreed upon when the village of Antioch purchased the area now set aside as a park, at the junction of Orchard and Main streets, was considered at a meeting of the village council Tuesday evening.

Further consideration of this matter will be made at an adjourned meeting to be held Tuesday evening, Oct. 17, at which the village attorney, George S. McGaughey, is expected to be present.

In the discussion Tuesday evening, it was pointed out that such a revision of the original plans would still leave a 60-foot roadway from Orchard street past the village tower, to the alleyway back of Kings, while preserving a larger area of the village park for the enjoyment of residents and villagers.

It was also pointed out that since the Thordarson company, which during the past few months has been located in the former Danish hall at the foot of Ida avenue, has now purchased of Charles N. Ackerman property adjoining the park, the preservation of a suitable recreation area nearby would add to the comfort of the company's employees during their lunch hour or rest periods.

The ladder leading up to the village water tower was replaced recently by Harry Stott, it was reported. Repairs to the "Rusta Restor" catholic protection system for preventing rusting of the tank are also necessary, it was announced, and Village Clerk Roy L. Murrie was empowered to arrange for having these made.

Discussed, but deferred for further study, was the question of zoning the village into residential, business and manufacturing districts, which had also been brought up at a previous meeting of the board.

It was pointed out that the only new construction at present under contemplation is that of a new building to house the Sheahan Implement company, at present located in the Ackerman building.

The Sheahan company's new site on Depot street, where foundations have already been laid, will conform to fire district and village regulations, it was reported.

Reports on plumbing repair and building permits were made by their respective committees at the request of Village President George B. Bartlett. Upon motion of the council members it was voted that all building permits be issued subject to the approval of the village board, with special meetings being called for that purpose in the event of any emergency building program.

Village Hall Prospects Bright
Village funds being accumulated toward the construction of a new village hall and fire station will have accumulated into a sizeable sum within the next two years, it was reported. When the project was first considered about six years ago, the possibilities of federal aid were taken into account, but this may not be necessary now, Village Clerk Murrie stated, announcing that the funds are at present invested in war bonds.

The bonded indebtedness incurred in purchasing the site—the former location of the Antioch hotel on Main street at the junction with Orchard—will be retired during the village's fiscal year ending in May, 1946, with payments of $1,200 being made this year and next year, it was explained.

Most of the council members are planning to attend a meeting of the Illinois municipal league in Peoria Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 and 2.

A Report from the Marines

Included in the avalanche of paper stuff that descends on this office daily via the U. S. mail is a great deal that is consigned to the waste basket without undue regret.

There is also some material that is so good, of its kind, that we wish we could use it in its entirety.

To our mind, the top-ranking, grade-A, out-and-out best job of publicity, exceeding even that of the army and navy public relations departments, the merchant marine, the railroads, the State Capitol news, the National Association of Manufacturers, the Cotton Institute of America, the CIO's Political Action Committee, the University of Illinois and our old favorite, the Fertilizer Review, —all of which can and do turn out an excellent job of publicity—well, to make a long sentence longer, folks, the super-duper job, as we see it, is done by none other than our old friends, the U. S. Marine corps.

The Marines seem to have everybody on the job, from Pvt. to Brig. Gen. and they send out a cartoon-illustrated mat service news sheet that is about as good as anything of its kind we've ever seen.

We've been looking over one example, trying to pick out some particularly choice sample of what we mean, but have given up, and will append a typical one, instead, as sent in by Sgt. Alvin M. Joseph, Jr., combat correspondent, from an ex-battlefront.

GUAM (Delayed)—The campaign here is over. Twenty-one days saw the American flag planted more firmly than ever on this island.

Men of Maj. Gen. Allen H. Turnage's Third Marine division are moving back from the northern jungles into which they drove the last desperate Japanese knots of resistance. The front lines have vanished. The period of "sniper-shooting" and complete securing has begun.

In new camps, dug out of hillsides and set up in breadfruit and coconut groves, barbers are going to work. Mail tents are filling with sacks of letters arrived from home. Hot food is taking the place of canned rations.

There are even some new clothes in camp. One camp didn't get enough clothing to go around on the first shipment. The sign on the bulletin board read: "Men who need clothes or shoes report to the storeroom. This is only for men who do not have two pairs of socks, one suit of clothes or one pair of shoes." Wags stood around for hours waiting for eligible nudes to appear.

On the roads, the speed limit signs are up: 20 miles per hour for jeeps; 10, miles per hour for trucks. Bulldozers are widening jungle trails pushed through the fighting.

Abandoned Jap stores are evidenced in every camp. Messengers ride Japanese bicycles with two-wheel brakes. Short wave dance music blares from late-model Jap radios.

In Agaña, the ruined capital, residents are seeking out their homes, clearing away the rubble and cleaning out rooms in which to live. Ranchers are returning to the hills, driving cattle and carabao back to the farms. A watch repairer is again in business and there is a long waiting line of Marines.

Through all this, danger still lurks. Individual Japs still hide in caves and jungle retreats. At night, they come out to look for food and water. "Salpe-shooting" patrols are bringing them to bay.

One patrol flushed a group from a thatched hut in the woods. On a table inside was a red toy pistol that made a siren noise and shot sparks when the trigger was pressed.

Sometimes the Japs aren't easily flushed. An ambulance brings two wounded Americans into a camp, and Marines, writing letters home about the concluded battle, look at each other as if to say: "Where did they come from?"

At night, most camps still keep lights out. Runners, wary of Marine caution, hurry across clearings in the moonlight, whistling, "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy."

In many foxholes there are still guards. Noises draw shots. As an American automatic rifle rips across a camp area at a noise, Marines get lower in their foxholes and console each other with the official announcement that "organized resistance on Guam has ended."

Led Calm Life 71 Years, Then Came 5 of High Jinks

Details of How Man Spent $150,000 Seen in Files Of Surrogate Court.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y. — Life passed by abominous Frederick S. Reeves of this place for 71 years. But he really lived the following five years.

Inheriting $300,000 from his uncle and father in 1936, Reeves managed to spend half of it before he died on June 17, 1941, and in the spending acquired a couple of girl friends, including one who shared his nights and days and a taste for liquor after a teetotal lifetime.

The details of Reeves' high jinks are set forth in a court of appeals judgment filed in Surrogate court, Riverhead, vouching his last will and testament. That will had left Reeves' entire estate, now estimated at $150,000, to Mrs. Leona Frankbach, classified legally as his housekeeper.

Gets Entire Estate.

But Mrs. Frankbach was far more than that, according to Reeves' daughter, Mrs. Emily Reeves Cookerly of Miami, Fla., who gets the entire estate under the court ruling. In fact, Mrs. Cookerly said, Reeves once introduced Mrs. Frankbach as "my new mistress." And Leona—Lee to Reeves in his formal moments—just laughed and laughed and laughed.

There weren't many formal moments. Depositions filed by Stanley Fowler of Riverhead and Milton H. Reuben, Mrs. Cookerly's attorneys, indicated that the usual mode of address was "lovey" or "dovey," with an occasional "darling." And, these witnesses said, Mrs. Frankbach hung around the house in a dress cut so far down from the shoulder that no imagination was needed.

Moves Family In.

None of this, Mrs. Cookerly's charge said, embarrassed Mrs. Frankbach. On the contrary, it was said, she moved her husband, William, and their three children into the Reeves home, one of Southampton's ancient houses, and went on being an old man's darling right under their noses.

All this, plus a couple of junkets to Florida during which Mrs. Frankbach and Reeves shared overnight cabins, added up to undue influence, in the opinion of the Riverhead Surrogate court. The court of appeals decision solemnly concurred, holding that it amounted to "a fraudulent course of conduct tending to arouse and stimulate the passions and emotions of that old gentleman."

And, intending to show that Leona knew just what she was doing, Mrs. Cookerly's lawyers dug up the fact that the avante-brunette studied psychology at New York's Columbia university.

Wealthy Briton Lived

As Hermit Amid Squalor

LONDON. — "Strange by name and strange by nature" was the comment of the disturbed deputy coroner, at an inquest over the death of George William Davies Strange, 78, of Warwick road, New Barnet, London, England, in the Wellhouse hospital in Barnet. It developed that Strange, although he was wealthy, lived like a hermit. It was revealed that he had owned the house in which he lived and also others in the district, and had much money in banks, yet he lived most frugally. In fact, his neighbors said he lived like a man without funds.

His bed showed that he had used old newspapers as bedclothes, while in cupboards were snowy white sheets and warm blankets. There were many unopened boxes of chocolate and other confectionery, obviously bought before the war. There was great expectation of hidden wealth when two massive safes were opened, but they were found to contain only a series of ordnance maps and some foreign coins.

Rose Pays for Rent of Church for Another Year

MANHEIM, PA.—One red rose changed hands at Zion Lutheran church here, and the church's rent and obligation to Baron William Henry von Stiegel, colonial glassmaker, was paid for another year. Baron Stiegel deeded a plot for a church in 1773, and stipulated that the congregation pay "one red rose annually in the month of June forever if the same shall be lawfully demanded by the heirs, executors or assigns." Frank Eshelman, Lancaster, presented the rose to Mrs. Laura Boyer Fager, Harrisburg, representing the Stiegel heirs.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"It sounds almost like a miracle, Judge... how did we ever do it?"

"American industry did it, Sally. When the Japs conquered the chief natural rubber producing centers of the world they thought they had dealt a death blow to our war effort. But, in less than two years, we are producing enough synthetic rubber in this country to supply all our military and essential civilian requirements.

"Our rubber experts knew how to make it but the most practical process at the time required huge amounts of industrial alcohol... far beyond the already overtaxed capacity of our industrial alcohol plants. So, overnight, our country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and produced hundreds of millions of gallons of the vitally needed alcohol.

"As a matter of fact, Sally, a high government official said recently... synthetic rubber is from 6 to 9 months ahead of where it could have been if alcohol had not been available for butadiene production."

"We were really fortunate, weren't we Judge, to have a beverage distilling industry in existence... able to help perform this great wartime miracle!"

Anything in the way of food, either fresh or preserved is acceptable. More than a hundred of God's little ones in this institution look to the public for the necessities of life. Therefore I ask you to be liberal. One in ten is not too large a proportion. If it is possible, bring your offering to the church Saturday, Oct. 7, or bring it to the morning service on Sunday. Girl Scouts will be at the church all day Saturday to assist you. Don't forget the dates, Saturday or Sunday, Oct. 7 or 8. "Freely ye received, freely give."

GOP Women Plan Radio Parties

"Neighborhood radio listening parties" to bring the discussion of the 1944 campaign issues into the family parlor are one of the major activities of the Republican women's campaign in behalf of the Dewey-Bricker ticket.

Sponsored by the National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs, of which Mrs. W. Glenn Suthers of Chicago is president, the campaign listening parties were inaugurated September 8, to hear Governor Dewey's speech carried by NBC and CBS radio networks from Louisville, Kentucky.

Republican women's clubs in 4000 communities in 40 states will join in the nation-wide chain of tune-in parties, to be continued to Election Day. Scheduled addresses of Governor Dewey and Vice-Presidential Candidate John W. Bricker and other Republican speeches indicate the community parties will have a heavy listening schedule.

Nobody Pays—Except You!

The director of a large federally financed electric undertaking recently was asked: "Do you include interest on the investment in calculating your costs?"

"No, interest is not included. We pay no interest," the bureaucrat replied. "The U. S. Treasury paid the interest."

In other words, only the poor taxpayer pays—and pays—and pays.

Lieut. C. C. Carper, naval intelligence officer, testified that more than a truckload of government property was recovered at the home, including shovels, kitchen utensils, brass hinges, silverware, rubber boots, electric fans and blankets.

Capt. and Mrs. L. J. Hughes and son, Enid, Okla., are visiting Mrs. Hughes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hughes, Perry, the former Jean Perry, has been here for two weeks. Capt. Hughes arrived here Wednesday morning.

DEWEY LASHES AT FDR IN FIGHTING SPEECH

Following are highlights of Governor Thomas E. Dewey's address delivered in the Municipal Auditorium in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, on September 25 and broadcast coast-to-coast.

Governor Dewey said in part:

Last Saturday night September 23 the man who wants to be President for sixteen years made his first speech of this campaign. It was a speech of mudslinging, ridicule and obscenity. It plumbed the depths of demagoguery by dragging into this campaign names of Hitler and Goebbels; it descended to quoting from "Mein Kampf" and to reckless charges of "fraud" and "falsehood."

"I shall not use the tactics of our enemies," by quoting from "Mein Kampf," I will never divide America. Those tactics also I leave to my opponent.

"I shall never make a speech to one group of American people, inciting them to hatred and distrust of any other group."

My opponent, however, has chosen to wage his campaign on the record of the past and has indulged in charges of fraud and falsehood.

My opponent describes me, and I quote him, as a "fantastic charge," the statement that his administration plans to keep men in the army when the war is over and that it intends to keep them there because it fears there will be no jobs for them in civil life. Well, who brought that up?

Here is the statement of a high official of the administration as reported on Aug. 23, 1944, in the publication of the United States army, the Stars and Stripes. He said:

"We can keep people in the army about as cheaply as we could create an agency for them when they are out."

Now, who said that? It was the national director of selective service appointed by Mr. Roosevelt and still in office.

But, says Mr. Roosevelt, the war department thereafter issued a plan for what he called "speedy discharges." You can read that plan from now until doomsday and you cannot find one word about "speedy discharges." It is, in fact, a statement of the priority in which men will be discharged after the war. It does not say whether they are to be retained in service a month or years after victory. The present administration, with its record of peace-time failure, is afraid to bring men home after victory.

In March, 1940, Mr. Roosevelt had been in office seven years. Yet the depression was still with us. We still had ten million Americans unemployed. Those are not my figures—those are the figures of the American Federation of Labor.

Now, I had not intended in this campaign to ask you to take over my opponent's sad record of failing to prepare the defenses of this country for war. It's all in the past—a very tragic past. It has cost countless American lives; it has caused untold misery.

But my opponent has now brought that subject up. He seized violently upon the statement that we were not prepared for war when it came. In his speech of Saturday night he called that a falsehood which not even Goebbels would have invented.

Now, were we prepared for war, or were we not?

In 1940, the year after the war began in Europe, the United States was in such a tragic condition that it couldn't put into the field as a mobile force 75,000 men. The army was only "25 per cent ready." Now, Mr. Roosevelt, did these statements come from Goebbels? Was that fraud or falsification? Those are the words of Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army, under oath.

I quote again: "Dec. 7, 1941 found the army air forces equipped with plans but not with planes." Did that come from Goebbels? That statement was made in an official report on Jan. 4th of this year by H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the army air forces of the United States of America.

Four months before Pearl Harbor, there was a debate in the United States Senate. The chairman of a Senate committee described on the floor of the Senate the shocking state of our defense program. Senator Vandenberg, asked the chairman where the blame should be laid, and the chairman replied: "There is only one place where the responsibility can be put." Then Senator Vandenberg said, "Where is that—the White House?" And the chairman of that committee replied, "Yes, sir."

Who was that committee chairman? It was Harry Truman, the New Deal candidate for vice president of the United States.

Again, in a magazine article in November, 1942, this statement appeared: "The reasons for the waste and confusion, the committee found, were everywhere the same: The lack of courageous, unified leadership and centralized direction at the top." Again, on the floor of the Senate in May, 1943, these words were uttered: "After Pearl Harbor, we found ourselves woefully unprepared for war." Was that Dr. Goebbels on the floor of the Senate?

The very words my opponent calls a falsification came from the mouth of his running mate, Harry Truman, the Democratic nominee for vice president.

Now listen to this: "When the treachery of Pearl Harbor came, we were not ready." Mr. Roosevelt, was that from Dr. Goebbels? The man who said that was Alben Barkley, your majority leader of the United States Senate. And where do you suppose Alben Barkley said that? When the treachery of Pearl Harbor came, we were not ready? Right in his speech nominating Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Now, why is it we were not ready when we were attacked? In a message to congress in 1935, he said: "There is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any will be otherwise than peaceful."

Now he said, and I quote: "How dare we are that the circumstances of the moment permit us to put our money into bridges and boulevards . . . rather than into huge standing armies and vast implements of war."

But war came just two years later. It was in January of 1940 that he publicly called for a two-ocean navy for the defense of America. It was that statement of mine which Mr. Roosevelt called, and I quote his words: "Just plain dumb."

The simple truth is that my opponent's record is desperately bad. The price the American people have had to pay for that record is desperately high.

My opponent now announces his desire to be President for sixteen years. He called it a "malicious falsehood" that he had ever represented himself to be "indispensable."

Let's look at these closely supervised words of his hand-picked candidate for vice president. Mr. Truman said of my opponent, and I am quoting him: "The very future of the peace and prosperity of the world depends upon his re-election in November."

Here are the words of Boss Kelly of the Chicago machine, who was the manager of that fake third-term draft of 1940. You remember? He said: "The salvation of this nation rests in one man." Was that statement ever repudiated by my opponent? No. It was rewarded by increased White House favors. So it was repeated again by the same man at the same time in the same city and for the same purpose this year: "The salvation of this nation rests in one man."

Now, was it a malicious falsehood that one of the first acts of my opponent's newly selected national chairman was to announce last May that he was for a fourth term and that he was looking forward to a fifth term?

Let's get this straight. The man who wants to be President for sixteen years is, indeed, indispensable. He is indispensable to Harry Hopkins, to Madam Perkins, to Harold Ickes. He is indispensable to a host of other political job holders. He is indispensable to America's leading enemy of civil liberties—the mayor of Jersey City. He is indispensable to those infamous machines, in Chicago—in the Bronx—and all the others. He is indispensable to Sidney Hillman and the Political Action Committee. He is indispensable to Earl Browder, the ex-convict and pardoned Communist leader.

Now, I had not intended in this campaign to ask you to take over my opponent's sad record of failing to prepare the defenses of this country for war. It's all in the past—a very tragic past. It has cost countless American lives; it has caused untold misery.

All in all, Mrs. Luce is scheduled by the Republican National Committee to make about 10 major campaign speeches before the voters are counted on November 7th. Two cities, Philadelphia and Newark, already have heard vigorous denunciations of New Deal administration from Mrs. Luce.

In seven other cities in six states, Mrs. Luce will further demonstrate her political and oratorical prowess. She is slated to speak in mid-October in Chicago, Indianapolis, Nashville, Boston, Detroit and St. Louis. Her second visit to Pennsylvania will be in Pittsburgh.

In addition to making these major speeches in response to a nationwide demand, Mrs. Luce has a campaign of "her very own," for re-election to Congress from the 4th Connecticut district. This is the only district in the country where the opposing congressional candidates of the two major parties are women. The Democrat candidate is a young woman lawyer endorsed by the C.I.O.

Representative Luce Slated for 10 Major Campaign Talks

A forceful campaigner, who evaluates situations and issues in a clear-cut political fashion, Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, Representative from Connecticut, is doing "her powerful bit" for the election of the Dewey-Bricker ticket.

Pegleg Is Unwelcome at

Annual Police Dance

KANKAKEE, ILL. — Acting Chief Elmer Nelson of the police department ordered Sgt. Bert Luckey to stay on duty the night of the annual police dance, although it was his regular night off.

"But, chief," protested Luckey, who has an artificial leg. "I wanna go."

"That's just it—I don't want you at the dance," said Nelson, sternly. "You almost caused a panic at the dance last year."

At the 1943 party Sergeant Luckey was dancing a mean rumba when his wooden leg fell off. A de luxe model, equipped with ball bearings at the joints, the leg rolled all over the ballroom floor, and tripped half a dozen dancers. The ball bearings also rolled over the floor, and some 20 dancers, stepping on them, hit the floor.

Joey Teases His Sister

And Pays With His Life

NEW YORK.—Parental discipline cost the life of Joey, an Indian black buck deer.

Joey, a year old and weighing 100 pounds, teased one of his five sisters by butting and shoving her in Brooklyn's Prospect Park Zoo.

Black Rajah, their father, watched in silence for a while, then went after Joey with his 18-inch horns, gouging him and knocking him down.

Joey became frightened and tried to jump a 12-foot enclosure. He fell back and broke both front legs.

Zoo officials called a doctor but Joey was beyond saving. He was destroyed with an overdose of anesthetic.

Harvest Before Frost

Squash and pumpkins are best harvested and put in storage before the first killing frost. If they are kept in a dry, cool room or a frost-proof attic they should keep at least till January.

Mother Reunited With Yankee Son In Chaos of Rome

Wife of Former Ambassador
Finds Youth Driving
An Ambulance.

ROME. — Frances Wilkinson Rosso, American-born wife of Augusto Rosso, former ambassador to the United States and her 21-year-old son by a former marriage, George Bunker, an American field service ambulance driver, were reunited after Mrs. Rosso had a chance encounter with her son's roommate near Vatican City.

The mother, who with the former ambassador had been released by the Allied occupation of Rome from eight months of virtual imprisonment in an apartment, had been questioning every American soldier she met about her son's whereabouts.

As she passed Vatican City an American ambulance pulled up to the curb and Walter Hackett of East Hampton, L. I., leaped out and hurriedly wiped off the windshield.

At Long Last.

"I don't suppose this will do any good, but my son is an ambulance driver—have you by any chance ever heard of him?" Mrs. Rosso asked. "His name is George Bunker."

"I know him," Hackett said. "I have lived and worked with him." Hackett said he would drive to Naples immediately and "pull Bunker off a ship" and bring him back to Rome.

"It is the hand of God," said the ambassador's wife. "With thousands of troops streaming through Rome my son's roommate just happened to stop and wipe the mud off a windshield. And some people say they don't believe in miracles."

Bunker is the son of Arthur H. Bunker, former OPA executive for the aluminum industry.

"The husband of my daughter, Mrs. James Hynes of Washington, is a naval officer on duty in the Pacific and with my own son in the field service, you can imagine what the sight of American troops pouring into Rome meant to me," she said.

New Life as a Recluse.

Hackett said he had canceled plans to return to the United States and had signed with the field service for another year. He will spend his leave as the Rossos' guest in the apartment where the ambassador and his wife hid from the Nazis for eight months.

"I never once set foot outside of the apartment but my wife would go out occasionally to get water or for a stroll," Rosso said.

"I used to go to St. Peter's now and then until it became too crowded with Germans," his wife added. "Living the life of a recluse was a new role for me. I had to learn to cook and keep house, as it was too dangerous to keep servants."

Rosso said his wife turned into an expert laundress and an excellent cook.

"Look at me," he exclaimed. "Don't I look like a vitamin-crammed husband who has enjoyed the best?"

Rosso said he had been asked to assume the post of secretary general of the foreign office, which he filled under the Badoglio government before the appearance of the Nazis in Rome drove him into hiding.

Marine Unaware Baby Is

Dead, So Wife Steals One

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—Unwilling to disappoint her husband, a marine sergeant who had been in the South Pacific 27 months, Mrs. Helen Kreger, 23, admitted abducting a two-year-old girl to replace her baby who died at birth, Detective Inspector Harlan Gibbs reported.

Gibbs quoted Mrs. Kreger as saying her husband was unaware that their baby had died. The officer said the woman told him she could not resist taking the baby when she saw her in a downtown clothing store. She was booked on a kidnapping charge.

Mrs. Rosela Lucero, mother of the baby, told police her baby was taken from the store by a woman who had offered to watch the girl while she was examining some goods. The baby was returned to Mrs. Lucero.

Chutist Rides Thermal

Wave for Half an Hour

WASHINGTON—The young paratrooper leaped from his plane, yelling "Geronimo" like all good paratroopers, but he didn't go down. He went up.

He watched his buddies swing in diminishing pendulums toward the ground, gazed anxiously as his airplane faded into the distance as he personally floated higher and higher.

"With no more control over his movements than a wisp of thisle-down," relates the official service magazine Air Force, "the paratrooper was tossed about on the point of a thermal wave."

"He spent half an hour watching his outfit fighting a fierce mock battle on the ground. In time, the thermal wave released the young man and he came down to join his battalion as a fresh reservist."

The magazine said the peculiar voyage took place at Fort Benning, Ga.

There is only one excuse for telling Helen Conner's story

"MY FATHER was born in Russia but he came to America years ago. With my brothers Al and Mike, I was brought up as a good American."

"When I was in my teens I met a handsome young Navy man at a Shriners' convention in San Francisco. His name was Bryan Conner. It was love at first sight—and you know the reputation of the Navy for action. Bryan proposed that night. He didn't know when we could marry because he had to get right back to his destroyer. But we weren't going to wait."

"I rented a motor boat, went out to the destroyer and talked to the captain. In five minutes Bryan was on his way back to shore and we were married."

"As time passed we had a fine baby boy. We named him William. By the time Bill was growing into young manhood my husband was assigned to recruiting service in Atlanta. He and Bill had great times hunting and fishing together. We were a happy family. My two brothers visited us often and we'd have the jolliest parties and picnics."

"Then the war started in Europe. Our son came to us one night and explained how he felt about it. He wanted to be prepared so he enlisted."

"Like any mother I hated him to leave home—but I couldn't stand in his way. Bill joined up."

"Pearl Harbor was more than my husband could take. He had lots of friends on the Arizona, the Utah, and other ships. He was 48 years old but he asked for active duty and he got it—on a PT boat in the South Pacific."

"My brothers got in too—Al in the Army, Mike in the Seabees. There they were—all four of them in it, my husband and brother Mike in the Pacific; my son and brother Al in Africa."

"I had to do something. So I went to welding school. After I finished school I taught welding. My thoughts were always with my husband, my son, and my brothers. I was working for them. I was living for their return. On June 30th of last year I opened this telegram:

The Secretary of War desires that I tender his deepest sympathy to you in the loss of your son. Report received states that he was killed in action on June 28th in the North African Theatre of War.

"Four days later, on the 4th of July, I got another message:

Deeply regret to inform you that your brother, Michael Zadorkin, was killed in action in performance of his duty and in the service of his country in the South Pacific on July 2, 1943.

"On July 8th I read:

The Secretary of War desires that I tender his deepest sympathy to you in the loss of your brother, Allan Zadorkin. Report received states he was killed in action on July 6th, 1943.

"Some time later I saw my husband. He was as shocked as I was about the death of our only son and my two brothers. But he was all the more determined to fight on."

"I remember seeing him off. It was at a submarine base in Florida. At two in the morning. There was a light mist over the harbor. I kissed my husband and he went aboard his PT boat. I watched him as long as I could see him waving good-bye."

"It wasn't many weeks later that I opened a final message:

Deeply regret to inform you your husband, William Jennings Bryan Conner was killed in action in performance of his duty and in the service of his country."

"I am not asking for pity. Not even sympathy. My men died the way they would have liked to die—fighting. We must carry on their fight."

"I won't be meeting my boy or my husband or my brothers again, but I want to see to it that other women get their men back."

"The last thing my husband wrote me was: 'Keep up the good work at the bomber plant. That's what I am doing . . . welding and riveting. And I'm going to keep on doing it as long as I can stand on my two feet. I am going to stay at my job. I am going to buy War Bonds. I'm not licked and I never will be. I'm going to live to see that day—that great day—when our enemies are made to pay in full for the lives they have taken away from all of us.'"

That is Helen Conner's story. Her tragedy is made public here only because it makes this fact crystal-clear: a war can be won only by sacrifice.

Buying War Bonds may call for sacrifice on our part. But when our sacrifice is compared to that of Helen Conner or her men, doesn't it make you feel that putting every last cent into War Bonds is really little enough to do? See if you can't buy another Bond—today.

Ruse Lures Tiger Tank to Its Doom By Hidden Mates

Lone Attack Halts Monster Where Aids With Bombs Were Posted.

WITH THE BRITISH SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISION, FRANCE. — When British paratroopers holding a vital sector of the Orne Valley in Normandy recently saw a Tiger tank and two self-propelling guns rolling down the road toward them, they thought they were done for. Since dawn they had been cut off from the rest of the British forces in the area by continuous and ferocious Nazi counterattacks.

They had held them all, but assault by the enemy's armor was something more grimly serious — especially since the last anti-tank gun the company possessed had been knocked out by shellfire a few hours before. So they did not have much hope of survival when the Tiger tank advanced.

And then Pvt. Michael McGee from one of the paratroop regiments decided that somehow he would stop the tank. Michael McGee is a fighting Glasgow Irishman from Kelvin-side and he has a couple of fighting pals as recklessly courageous as himself.

Friends Prove Game

He called them over—Corp. Tom Killen and Pvt. John Sullivan. He said:

"Look, boys, if these Jerry panzers get through this road and among us we're all goners anyway, so we may as well die trying to stop them. I've an idea. Are you game to try with me?"

They agreed. McGee went to a dump and handed Killen and Sullivan a pile of anti-tank bombs. He told his friends to hide inside a house 100 yards up the road and said:

"Now wait in there till the tank stops outside the door and then throw your bombs and throw them straight."

An hour later paratroopers heard the rumbling approach of the giant Nazi tank. Few of them believed McGee could do anything about it and it was the grimmest moment of the campaign for most of them. Then, hidden behind walls, they saw the Tiger tank turn round the corner and into view. Already heavy shells from its 150-mm. gun were blasting among them. With hearts in their mouths, they suddenly saw McGee leap over the wall and dash to the middle of the road.

"It looked like a crazy thing to do," a paratrooper said afterward. "All he had in his hand was his Bren gun and you know how little good that is against a monster tank. But Michael put the gun to his hip and opened fire. He sprayed the front of the tank and you could see bullets bouncing off it as it advanced."

Prediction Comes True. "And what Michael had said happened. The Tiger tank, as if astonished at the impudence of this lone soldier with his little gun, stopped. Stopped, moreover, right outside the house where Tom Killen and Sullivan were hiding and those boys did their stuff."

"We saw bombs flinging over. We saw them hit the tank and then there was a terrific explosion, a sheet of flame and great billowing of smoke—and there was one less Tiger tank in Field Marshal Rommel's 21st Panzer division."

All done so neatly and swiftly that Private McGee wasn't even touched by the guns of the Tiger.

He dashed back behind the wall as the bombs hit. He stayed there until he was sure the tank was destroyed and then, with more bombs, he went up the road to survey the damage and congratulate his pals.

"Feel like doing it again, boys?" he asked.

"If you're game, Mike, we are," they told him.

So twice more that afternoon Michael McGee dashed into the road with his Bren gun and peppered attacking armor. Twice Nazi panzers — self-propelled guns this time — stopped in sheer astonishment just long enough to be destroyed by skillfully flung bombs.

Gobs Have Day Off, So

They Take Hand in War

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY AT GROSSET, ITALY. — A couple of first class seamen from Uncle Sam's navy, Robert Gaston, 19, of Reading, Pa., and Harold Simpson, 18, of Billerica, Mass., had a day off.

They went to a salvage dump, picked up a couple of used army rifles and then hitchhiked to the front north of this town.

They moved in alongside the doughboys, took some pot shots at the Jerries, looked things over, said they'd had a great leave, thumbed a ride back to port and reported ready for duty again.

Daily News Choice For Congress

Curtis D. MacDougall

The Chicago Daily News, whose independence and political honesty are respected everywhere, has endorsed Curtis D. MacDougall for election to Congress from the 10th Illinois District. Only two other Democrats in other districts were similarly endorsed over their Republican opponents.

MacDougall also has been endorsed by the Chicago Sun and by a large group of Republican voters, the Independent Voters' League, nearly all members of the Northwestern University faculty, and by a students' club of the University which has been conducting a vigorous MacDougall campaign.

Former newspaper man, and now a member of the University faculty, MacDougall for years has advocated international cooperation to promote world peace and social progress. His reputation for clear thinking on such important issues has earned him the endorsement of the Daily News and other leading newspapers.

WITH ENRICHED RED BLOOD

If you feel worn-out and run-down... If you are handicapped by loss of strength, vigor and feel older than your years, these symptoms may indicate a deficiency in the iron and hemoglobin of the red blood corpuscles. This hemoglobin must be replenished in order to carry from the lungs the oxygen that is needed to build up new cells. The new cells that replace the worn out, broken down tissues in every part of the body. Many times TONO for its help in reviving strength, vitality and morale lost, due to blood deficiency. TONO is a combination of iron, liver concentrate, natural hemoglobin and yeast to aid nature in building better blood. It is designed to prevent deficiencies which frequently result in failure of the red blood corpuscles to carry adequate oxygen.
